GREETINGS FROM AWM HEADQUARTERS!

Thank you for the work you continue to do on a local level to represent women in media! We know things are challenging in the current environment and we appreciate your ongoing work to support and recognize women across all media segments.

We hope you joined us for the 2020 Gracie Awards Virtual Experience last month! In case you missed it, we invite you tune in on AWM's website. View the show, hosted by Susan Kelechi-Watson, which featured Gracies Impact Award recipient Katy Perry, performances by Mickey Guyton and honorees, including Danai Gurira, Naomi Watts, Geena Davis, Natasha Lyonne, Amy Poehler, Tamron Hall, Gayle King and more. Also available to the public are the digital awards program and the winners' montages. Join in on the continued celebration of this year's outstanding winning content.

2021 GRACIE AWARDS CALL FOR ENTRIES OPENING SOON!

Stay tuned for the call for entries for the 2021 Gracie Awards scheduled to open towards the end of this month. We know there is so much talent in each market and we hope you will consider entering talent from your area for consideration!

New Scholarship Opportunity

The Alliance for Women in Media Foundation has partnered with ESPN to help pave the way for Black women in the sports media industry. Through AWMF's scholarship program, the ESPN scholarship will provide two $3,750 educational scholarships to one promising Black female graduate student and one Black female junior or senior undergraduate student pursuing careers in sports media. The deadline to apply is November 20, 2020. Please spread the word!
